McPherson Makers Space Update

The discussion of a McPherson Makers Space concept was held recently at the McPherson Chamber of Commerce. The meeting drew approximately 28 people with various backgrounds of interest; individuals, educators, artists, engineers, hobby “makers”, industry and economic development personnel from McPherson as well as the surrounding communities. There is a lot of excitement to have a designated space for people to create, explore, experiment, invent and fueling the inner entrepreneur and inventor.

A Makers Space can be to an asset to the community and area in addressing workforce development, developing skills and mentoring opportunities.

Dave O'Reilly, Professional Engineer by profession led the meeting by welcoming everyone. He wanted it to be clear that his vision for this “center” is that it would be a community -supported effort; therefore, he encouraged all those interested to provide feedback in how this center would look. After the welcome, O'Reilly shared with the group the different options for “maker “ models that were in process around the country. He then passed the floor to Mark Glade, President of the new MakerSpace startup in Harvey that is quickly gaining traction. Mark provided some fantastic insight for the discussion by sharing what their group had learned in their process of getting their center launched. He encouraged the group to research/visit some of the surrounding centers to see how they were organized and get a better understanding of what might best fit in McPherson. The Make Harvey center is fashioned after MakeICT in Wichita, which is a community supported initiative operated by volunteers whose mission is to innovate, learn and build community at the intersection of art, technology, science, and culture.

After hearing the options from Dave and also learning from Mark's experience, the majority of the group seemed to feel most comfortable (at least at this point) with the MakeICT model as well as it embodies what most in the group wanted to see in our community a humble, inviting place where residents and visitors could come together and explore and finetune skills in art, technology, science, and culture.

The group discussed formalizing a monthly meeting to keep the momentum going. The next meeting will be scheduled during the first couple weeks in August. The group decided the next meeting would involve a tour of MakeICT in Wichita. The date and time will be communicated as soon as a meeting is set with MakeICT.

OWNERS TRUSTED MORE THAN CONGRESS, CORPORATE CEOS

(Published from Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives 6/18/18 Newsletter)

I came upon an article from the National Federation of Independent Business organization that I found incredibly interesting. The title of the article “Owners Trusted More than Congress, Corporate CEOs, reports that a recent survey showed that while Americans value the importance of small business, many recognize a variety of barriers to starting one.

NFIB President and CEO Juanita Duggan said, “When Americans go to work or buy services, food, and household goods, they are often entering a small business. The survey quantifies how deeply ingrained this sector is across the country.” “Small business owners know the community, and the community knows them. Americans clearly want elected officials to listen to and learn from small businesses for the betterment of the community.”

Small businesses are part of the fabric of Americans’ lives, with one in four (24%) working at one and nearly half (49%) having a family member or friend employed by a small business. Seventy-two percent of those surveyed purchase goods and services from small businesses often.

Although Americans had near-universal praise for small businesses, recognition of the risks and challenges associated with starting one is significant. Seventy-eight percent of Americans believe it would be difficult for someone like them to start a successful small business, citing economic uncertainty (41%) and lack of willingness to take a risk (25%) as primary reasons.

When it comes to understanding local needs, (82%) say small business owners have a strong understanding of local community. Regarding preference in leadership, Americans trust small business owners as elected officials (59%) and prefer them by a wide margin over a CEP of a large corporation (4%) or a union representative (9%).

With more than nine in ten stating that small businesses are important for the local community, it comes as no surprise that (83%) of Americans believe small business concerns should be a priority for lawmakers.

Chamber and Main Expand TV Advertising Option

For quite a few years, the Chamber and Main Street have been offering our members quarterly television advertising “Experience McPherson . . . . . Just a short drive from anywhere” with KAKE Channel 10. The exposure reaches Salina, Lindsborg, Great Bend/ Hays as well as on Cox cable channels. It has been a proven method of marketing for our member businesses, special events and our over-all community. The Chamber is very proud to be able to offer this affordable tv advertising opportunity.

We are pleased to announce that we have added to the tv advertising options – we are partnering with Eagle TV as well. Eagle TV includes FOX (KSAS) viewing area and represents approximately 150,000 households. The emphasis of the programing placement is regional, with only a few spots shown nearest McPherson. The Chamber and Main Street welcomed the opportunity to expand the coverage area and reach new viewers and potential customers of our member businesses.

This is just one of the many marketing/promotional tools the Chamber offers its members. If you would like more information about the regional advertising, please feel free to contact the Chamber at 241-3303.
